- 1) Equipping civil society with new knowledge, skills, and tools to fundraise, connect with different stakeholders, and communicate in complex operating environments;
- 2) Fostering dialogue and creating space for civil society to participate in public policy processes;
- 3) Bridging the gap between citizens and civil society through awareness raising, storytelling, and outreach; and
- 4) Enabling the (re)emergence of civil society-government dialogue by improving existing civil society organizations' participation mechanisms.
